It was a beautiful end to see for a workweek that included wind, rain and bitter cold. The sunset to the west from Main Street at around 5:30 p.m. Friday gave little hint of what the preceding days had contained. (Courier staff photo by Trenton Scroggins).

County council balks at jail land deal

By TALI HUNT

The Jefferson County Council tabled a decision to put $50,000 in good-faith money on a potential property for the new Jefferson County Jail during a joint meeting Thursday evening with the Jefferson County Commissioners.

The commissioners presented a contract that was created with the property owners to allow the county 75 days to determine if the property is suitable for the jail if they made the good-faith payment. The terms of the contract stipulated the good-faith payment would be taken off the total cost of the property — $360,000 — if the county finds the property suitable in the 75-day period.

The 63-acre property in the proposed contract is at 4000 North U.S. 421 near Century Tube.

The commissioners explained to the council that the county had a clause in the agreement that would allow them to pull out of the sale for any reason and get a full refund anytime before the 75 days ended.

The commissioners voted unanimously during the joint meeting to accept the contract. The council voted 4-1 to table the decision after expressing concerns about other potential site locations that they felt needed to be considered. Councilmembers Joe Craig and Heather Foy were not present at the time of the vote; Councilman and Jail Committee Member Ray Denning was the minority vote.

One specific site the council members said they wanted to look at is a shovel-ready 62-acre property owned by the City of Madison at 778 West Hutchinson Lane. The council members said they wanted to talk to the city about purchasing part of the land.

Council members also expressed concerns to the commissioners that the site they had just been presented was at the front of a major gateway into Madison.

Craig said he felt that the community had not yet been given the opportunity to provide input and understanding. He also said the feasibility study produced for the county by RQAW, the firm hired to produce the study for a new jail, should be put on the county website so residents can

Shutdown takes a timeout until Feb. 15 to try to find agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Submitting to mounting pressure and growing disruption, President Donald Trump agreed to a deal Friday to reopen the government for three weeks, backing down from his demand that Congress give him money for his border wall before federal agencies get back to work.

Standing alone in the Rose Garden, Trump said he would sign legislation funding shuttered agencies until Feb. 15 and try again to persuade lawmakers to finance his long-sought wall.

The deal he reached with congressional leaders contains no new money for the wall.

Trump’s retreat came in the 35th day of the partial shutdown as intensifying delays at the nation’s airports and a missed payday for hundreds of thousands of federal workers brought new urgency to efforts to resolve the standoff.

The shutdown was ending as Democratic leaders had insisted it must — reopen the government first, then talk border security. “The president thought he could crack Democrats and he didn’t and I hope it’s a lesson for him,” said the Senate Democratic leader, Chuck Schumer. House Speaker Nancy Pelosi said of her members: “Our unity is our power. And that is what maybe the president underestimated.”

Trump still made the case for a border wall and maintained he might again shut down the government over it.

Whatever negotiations restart next, Trump enters them from a weakened position. Recent polls found Trump bore the blame for the shutdown.

“If we don’t get a fair deal from Congress, the government will either shut down on Feb. 15, again, or I will use the powers afforded to me under the laws and Constitution of the United States to address this emergency,” Trump said. He has been considering declaring a national emergency in order to fund the border wall unilaterally, a move that would almost certainly face legal hurdles.

He said a bipartisan committee of lawmakers would be formed to consider border spending before the new deadline.

“They are willing to put partisanship aside, I think, and put the security of the American people first,” Trump said. He asserted that “barrier or walls will be an important part of the solution.”

Congress was expected to vote on the plan swiftly.

Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell said he hopes there will be “good-faith negotiations over the next three weeks to try to resolve our differences” on border security.

2 from Jefferson County finalists in nature photo contest

By PEGGY VLEREBOME
Special to the Courier

Two amateur photographers from Jefferson County are among the 40 finalists for the grand prize in the third annual southern Indiana Farm & Nature Photo Contest.

The public can vote for the winner either online or in person at displays of the photos.

“Whenever I am outdoors I always try and take in the beauty of my surroundings,” said Wisman, of Madison. “Madison (and Jefferson County as a whole) have so much to offer. I entered the contest as a way to showcase my community and get people interested in conserving our landscape.”

“I took the picture for the memories,” Bolding said.

“This is the haymow to the original Dairy Barn that my Great Grandpa Willard Read and his two sons built. It was built around 1946. One of my favorite pastimes when I was growing up was to go over to the dairy barn and help dad milk and feed the calves we kept in the bottom half. Many hours have been played in the hay, mounding the loose hay and jumping off into it, building forts and playing house.”

To see the 40 photos that are finalists, go to <http://oakheritageconservancy.org/get-involved/photoexhibit/>. There, visitors can see the photos and vote for a Grand Prize winner.

Some of the photos will also be on display at the Jefferson County Soil and Water Conservation District annual meeting on Tuesday, Feb. 12, at 6 p.m. at the Jefferson County Fairgrounds. For more information, call (812) 256-2330, ext. 3.

The contest is sponsored by Oak Heritage Conservancy and George Rogers Clark Land Trust. Amateur photographers submitted more than 270 photos. Each one had to be taken in Indiana.

Together, the photos show the natural beauty of southern Indiana, said Liz Brownlee, executive director of the conservancy.

“These are the pieces of Indiana that we all want to see flourish and grow — the things worth protecting,” Brownlee said.

The organizations are both nonprofits. Oak Heritage protects natural areas for the public, including old growth forests, wetlands, and butterfly habitat. George Rogers Clark protects working farms, keeping the land open for crops and pasture.

“We host the contest to get people thinking about the beauty here in southern Indiana,” Brownlee said. “We hope people will ask themselves: what do we love about our community? How can we all help protect the beauty of Indiana forever?”

Whether in person or online, everyone is invited to vote one time, and one time only. Voting will end in March, after the photos have been exhibited around southern Indiana.

The Grand Prize winner will receive a one-year membership to Oak Heritage Conservancy. To learn more about joining Oak Heritage Conservancy, go to www.oakheritageconservancy.org.

The photo project is made possible by the Indiana Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Finalist Kristi Wisman’s photo shows a barge on the Ohio River with forests all around. “I entered the contest as a way to showcase my community and get people interested in conserving our landscape,” Wisman said. Devon Bolding, of Dupont, entered a black-and-white photo from the barn his great-grandfather built. “I took the picture for the memories,” Bolding said. “Many hours have been played in the hay... building forts and playing house.”

Indiana Chamber poll finds support for hate crimes law

By DAVE TAYLOR (Terre Haute) Tribune-Star

A new poll may help efforts to enact a hate crimes law in Indiana.

A statewide survey of 600 registered voters for the Indiana Chamber of Commerce found 74 percent favor such legislation. The business organization supports passage of a hate crimes, or bias crimes, bill as an economic development initiative.

“Indiana is a warm and welcoming state,” Kevin Brinegar, the group’s president and chief executive officer, said Tuesday in releasing the poll results. “But it is time to remove any perception that is not true and, most importantly, remove Indiana from the short list of states without a bias crimes law.”

The chamber said support crossed political party lines — 63 percent among Republicans, 75 percent for independents and 84 percent for Democrats.

Gov. Eric Holcomb, a Republican, has said he supports legislation that would see Indiana join 45 other states and the District of Columbia in imposing stronger penalties upon conviction of bias-related crimes.

At least eight such bills, five in the House and three in the Senate, have been filed in the General Assembly. Most, but not all, specify characteristics of victims that would trigger hate-crime provisions, such as race, gender, religion, sexual orientation and gender identity. Holcomb favors such specifics.

“It is needed legislation,” said Sylvester Edwards, president of the Greater Terre Haute NAACP branch.

Efforts have been ongoing for about 40 years in Indianapolis to pass a hate crimes law. Edwards suggests Indiana is among five hold-out states because most of the state’s legislators are not affected.

“The problem is those who are voting on the bill are those who may not have this problem,” he said. “A lot of times that’s a bias because they don’t fit in a category that a hate crimes law would help. They’ve got to put aside their bias.”

One Wabash Valley state representative, Bruce Borders, has gone on record as opposed to the hate crime proposals.

Borders, R-Jasonville, speaking at a recent crackerbarrel session at the Vigo County Public Library, said Indiana judges are already given discretion in using bias as an aggravating circumstance when handing down a sentence.

He also was one of four Republican state representatives who submitted an opinion-editorial piece that argued crimes should be determined by actions and not underlying thoughts or motivations.

They argue such an approach is ultimately dangerous to the public’s civil liberties and actually leans toward further state control of the individual.

On other matters the Indiana Chamber has on its list of key issues for this year’s legislature, the poll found 62 percent of voters support an increase in the cigarette tax while 65 percent favor raising the legal smoking age.

Eighty-six percent of those polled endorsed additional state investment in preschool.

Lawmakers approve policies banning sexual harassment

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — State legislators are now covered by new policies prohibiting sexual harassment. House members approved the policy in a unanimous voice vote Thursday after the Senate adopted a similar policy two weeks ago. The new rules expressly forbid unwanted sexual advances by lawmakers, with language banning any sexual conduct with interns that was added after some experts faulted a draft policy for not including such a prohibition. State lawmakers weren’t previously covered by a specific sexual harassment policy, and the new rules were ordered in a bill adopted last year amid a wave of sexual misconduct allegations against powerful men in public office, Hollywood and the media that ignited the #MeToo movement.

Murder suspect caught fleeing traffic stop

INDIANAPOLIS — Police say they’ve captured a murder suspect who fled on foot during a traffic stop. Police say Derrick Warner, 26, was found hiding in a house after the traffic stop Thursday morning on the city’s southeast side. He’s charged with murder and unlawful possession of a firearm by a serious violent felon in the shooting death of Richard Pettry, 42, on Jan. 12. Police said Warner jumped out of the passenger side of the car and fled during the traffic stop. Officers learned afterward that Warner was wanted on a murder warrant. Two schools were locked down during the ensuing search.

Insanity defense plans in gruesome slaying

JEFFERSONVILLE — Attorneys for a man accused of killing his ex-girlfriend and eating parts of her body plan to argue he was insane at the time. The Courier-Journal reported court documents show two psychiatrists will examine Joseph Oberhansley, 37, to determine whether he was legally insane. The same psychiatrists are required to testify at his trial, which is scheduled to begin Aug. 19. Prosecutors say Oberhansley broke into the Jeffersonville home of Tammy Jo Blanton, 46, in September 2014, raped her, fatally stabbed her and ate parts of her body. He’s charged with murder, burglary and rape. A judge ruled in December that Oberhansley was competent to stand trial after a 21-month stay at a state psychiatric hospital.

Vet to adopt dog he served with

CULVER — A veteran is counting the days until he’s reunited with the bomb-sniffing dog he served with years ago in Afghanistan. U.S. Rep. Jackie Walorski called Army veteran Joseph Steenbeke on Wednesday to inform him that he’ll be able to adopt Tess, a Belgian Malinois whose ID number is tattooed on his arm. The South Bend Tribune reported that the Culver man hasn’t seen Tess since his tour of Afghanistan ended in 2013, but he’s been trying to adopt her ever since. Steenbeke, who is Ancilla College’s head golf coach, credits Walorski with “calling people I don’t have access to.”

Man reported swept downriver from dam

EDINBURGH — Authorities say a man was reported to have been swept downriver from a dam across the Big Blue River in Edinburgh. The Indiana Department of Natural Resources says authorities got a 911 call Thursday from someone who saw what looked like a man in the frigid water at the dam. Authorities responded and searched the area downriver of the dam without finding anyone. The search was suspended Thursday night because of river and weather conditions. Searchers planned to return to the area Friday as officials sought help from the public to determine the identity of the possible missing man.

Mistrial denied in 2017 family attacks

EVANSVILLE — A man convicted in a 2017 attack that left his wife dead and his adult twin daughters injured is awaiting sentencing after a judge denied a request for a mistrial. The Evansville Courier & Press reported that Judge Robert Pigman on Thursday denied a request by lawyers for Clinton Loehrlein, 56, to set aside his felony convictions. Sentencing is set for Feb. 13. A Vanderburgh County jury last year found the Darmstadt man guilty of murder, two counts of attempted murder, two counts of aggravated battery and misdemeanor resisting law enforcement. His daughters testified during the trial, describing being shot by their father, who also shot and stabbed their mother, Sherry Loehrlein, 52. Clinton Loehrlein had claimed insanity in the January 2017 attack.

Back to prison for 3 years in DUI fatality

GOSHEN — A man who pleaded guilty in a 2008 drunken-driving crash that killed a pregnant woman has been returned to prison for three years for violating his probation. An Elkhart County judge sentenced Jon Hicks, 57, on Thursday after ruling that he broke the terms of his probation by consuming alcohol. The Elkhart Truth reports that Hicks was originally sentenced to 18 years in prison, with three years suspended, after pleading guilty to drunken driving and involuntary manslaughter charges in the 2008 death of Sara Martinez, 22. He was released on probation in 2016, but was accused of violating probation by testing positive for alcohol last June.

Farmers struggle without key reports

KOKOMO — Some farmers are concerned that the U.S. Department of Agriculture is delaying the release of key crop reports during the partial federal government shutdown. Brad Winger, who farms corn and soybeans in Howard and Miami counties, told The Kokomo Tribune that he’s “driving blind” and unsure of what to do with some of last year’s harvest without the data. The USDA announced the delay Jan. 4. The reports detail the size of last year’s harvests and give an early estimate for what farmers will plant in the upcoming season. Chris Hurt, an agricultural economist at Purdue University, said the reports also would be valuable to understand the impact of the ongoing trade war with China.

$10M bond in bingo hall shooting

EVANSVILLE — A man who police say opened fire inside a Veterans of Foreign Wars post crowded with people playing bingo has been held on a $10 million bond. A Vanderburgh County judge set bond for John Burghardt, 70, on Thursday and scheduled his next court appearance for Tuesday. Burghardt has not been formally charged in the Jan. 13 shooting at an Evansville VFW post. He’s being held on preliminary charges that include attempted murder. Evansville Police say Burghardt shot and wounded a man who had barred him from entering the post through a back door. Others inside the building tackled and disarmed him. The Evansville Courier & Press reported that Burghardt has been barred from contacting five people, including the shooting victim.

Guilty plea in child molestation

JEFFERSONVILLE — A man has pleaded guilty to 20 counts of child molestation and faces up to 120 years in prison. The Courier Journal reported Michael Begin, 19, of Jeffersonville made the plea Friday in a Clark County courtroom. Authorities say he molested the children between the ages of 3 and 8 while working at a YMCA and as an elementary school teaching assistant. He was originally charged in 2017 with two molestation counts and more charges were added. He was a high school senior at the time. Begin is scheduled to be sentenced on March 21.

Investigation into death of jail inmate

FRANKFORT — Authorities are investigating the death of an inmate at a jail. The State Journal reported Dylan H. Stratton, 21, of Frankfort was found dead inside his cell early Wednesday at the Franklin County Regional Jail. Jail spokesman Ron Wyatt says foul play is not suspected, but declined further comment. He said Frankfort police were investigating. Franklin County Coroner Will Harrod said the cause and manner of death haven’t been established. Stratton was indicted the day before his death on drug and other charges.

School choice backers tout scholarship plan

FRANKFORT — School choice supporters are urging state lawmakers to support a tax credit program aimed at boosting private school scholarships. House Majority Floor Leader John “Bam” Carney said Thursday that the proposal will be introduced when lawmakers reconvene in early February to resume this year’s legislative session. Similar bills calling for a scholarship tax credit program died in previous years. School choice supporters rallied in the cold outside the statehouse on Thursday. The proposal would allow individuals and businesses to receive tax credits for donations to scholarship-granting organizations that provide assistance to low- and middle-income students. Carney, a Republican from Campbellsville, says the scholarships help students find the education that best fits their needs. Others speaking at the rally included State Treasurer Allison Ball and state Sen. Ralph Alvarado.

Could citizenship question cut local government funds?

By SCOTT L. MILEY
(Jeffersonville & New Albany) News and Tribune

INDIANAPOLIS — The controversial inclusion of a question about citizenship in the 2020 Census could be a barrier to some ethnic groups, most noticeably with Spanish participants followed by those of Middle East-North African descent.

But the biggest challenges in conducting the decennial census will be overcoming apathy and making Americans understand that the survey is tied to community funding, according to a report issued this week by the U.S. Department of Commerce, which administers the census.

The “2020 Census Barriers, Attitudes, and Motivators Study Survey Report” found the primary barriers to census participation were a lack of knowledge about its purpose, citizen apathy and lack of political efficacy, confidentiality concerns, and fear of repercussions such as deportation of non-citizens.

Some groups such as rural residents, African-Americans and those of Middle East-North African (MENA) descent felt powerless in participating in the census, the study found.

Researchers reported, “Many focus group participants did not believe it mattered if they were personally counted in the census, let alone their own families.

“Rural, black or African-American, and younger male MENA participants in particular expressed anger and frustration when discussing

THE QUESTION IN QUESTION

In March 2018, a draft of questions for the U.S. Census Bureau in 2020 was issued.

A question about citizenship had been asked since 1820 and was necessary in enforcing voter rights as well as assisting researchers and policymakers, the Bureau said.

The proposed question and responses are:
“Is this person a citizen of the United States?”

- A. Yes, born in the United States
- B. Yes, born in Puerto Rico, Guam, the U.S. Virgin Islands or Northern Marianas
- C. Yes, born abroad to U.S. citizen parents or guardians
- D. Yes, U.S. citizen by naturalization (print year of naturalization)
- E. No, not a U.S. citizen

The results were compiled from 42 focus groups in 14 cities in the U.S., including Puerto Rico. Researchers were tasked with finding Americans at risk for not being adequately represented in the census or those expected to have low response rates.

On March 26, 2018, Commerce Secretary Wilbur Ross directed the Census Bureau to use the 2020 Census to ask every resident about citizenship status.

A citizenship question had been asked in most census surveys since 1850, and placed on the long form in 1950. It was omitted in 2010 as households received the short form.

After the question was announced, 17 states, including California and New York, filed suit seeking its removal.

On Jan. 15, a judge for the U.S. Southern District of New York enjoined the Secretary of Commerce from adding the question to the 2020 Census.

The U.S. Supreme Court said it would not hear an appeal, although an emergency request could still be filed.

In support of keeping the question, Indiana Attorney General Curtis Hill joined in a multi-state legal brief in the federal lawsuit.

In a statement last year, Hill said, “The federal government is well within its rightful authority to ask census respondents whether they are citizens. In fact, a negative response does not necessarily mean that the respondent is here illegally. Those with work or student visas are not U.S. citizens but are here lawfully.”

One Southern Indiana to offer association health plan

By BROOKE McAFEE
(Jeffersonville & New Albany) News and Tribune

A new health insurance plan aims to expand affordable benefit options for a wide range of Southern Indiana businesses, from individual entrepreneurs to large corporations.

One Southern Indiana is preparing to unroll a member program called Insurance Under ONE, a health plan that will offer employers of all sizes a large association group rate. The program will be available starting March 1 for all members.

One Southern Indiana is partnering with the Southern Indiana Health Organization, Baptist Health and Norton Healthcare (including Clark Memorial Health) to provide networks of local and regional providers, which depend on the policies chosen.

Employers can choose from six Preferred Provider Organization health insurance options, two Health Savings Account plans and wellness benefits such as screenings and flu shots. The deductible plans range from $2,000 to $6,500, according to Traci Wright, Southern Indiana Health Organization Insurance Services vice-president of sales and account management.

“They align nicely to the market and the competition in the market for small employers, and as an association, this will be pooled together so that we can offer affordable, sustainable rates to small employers,” she said.

One Southern Indiana will also continue to offer discounted ancillary insurance such as dental, vision, pet, short and long-term disability, along with Premium Only Plan benefits.

Employers can choose Baptist Health’s network of 1,300 providers, Norton Healthcare’s network of 1,600 providers or a combination of both for a network of 2,900 providers, according to One Southern Indiana board member Jason Lopp.

The plan offers competitive rates with no medical underwriting for companies of one to 50 employees, according to Wendy Dant Chesser, One Southern Indiana President and CEO. She said since health insurance is one of the most important factors in job satisfaction, she expects Insurance Under ONE to help employers attract and retain employees, particularly with the rising costs of healthcare.

“We’re not only taking care of for the workforce of today, but the workforce of tomorrow as well,” she said.

The large group rates offered in Insurance Under ONE are typically only available to companies with 50 or more employees, Lopp said. Even self-employed One Southern Indiana members will be able to use Insurance Under ONE.

“Before, it was difficult for a single member to find insurance,” he said. “This allows a single-member LLC or a single-member organization to actually get healthcare without going through underwriting because they’re looked at as a member of a very large group. I think that’s a great benefit to some of our local mom and pop shops that may just have one person running the whole thing.”

He said there will be flexibility in the choice of benefit plans.

“One Southern Indiana endeavored to find a health association plan with reasonable rates for the self-employed entrepreneur, the small shop with 10 employees, a growing construction company or a dental office with 65 employees,” he said. “This is not a discount program — this is a full-blown, real health plan with a variety of options.”

Baptist Health Floyd President Dr. Daniel Eichenberger, who is also a One Southern Indiana board member, said he is excited to provide affordable, quality health insurance to Southern Indiana employees.

“Baptist Health believes this partnership enhances our community’s ability to attract businesses and to improve both quality of life and quality of play for employees and their families,” he said. “These are exciting times for small businesses in Southern Indiana, and because of One Southern Indiana’s engagement in economic development, employees will no longer have to go without health insurance.”

One Southern Indiana estimates that Insurance Under ONE could cover as many as 170,000 people in the region. Any insurance agent who is a member of One Southern Indiana will also be able to market and sell the plan.

While all eight Preferred Provider Organization and Health Savings Account plans are available to One Southern Indiana companies who have been a member for more than a year, those who have been a member for less than a year will have limited options at first.

One Southern Indiana member Miguel Hampton, owner of a creative marketing business called F5 Enterprises, LLC, said he expects the health plan to benefit him as a small business owner with two employees.

He said he and his wife have always had private plans or flexible benefits plans, and he believes Insurance Under ONE will be a better option.

“It’s more competitive than some of the things we’ve started looking at, and it’s less expensive than some things we’ve carried in the past,” he said. “Insurance is really expensive. We’ve paid anywhere from $1,200 to $1,800 a month for years.”

Hampton is also looking into hiring another employee at F5, he said, and he expects the new plan to be an important factor in decision-making.

Dant Chesser said Insurance Under ONE could lead to economic growth in Southern Indiana.

“We recognize from an economic development standpoint that if we have good quality, affordable healthcare in our communities, that makes us more attractive for growth of new companies and growth of existing companies as well,” she said. “So when we start working on programs that help existing companies, we also know that it’s helping our community longterm.”

Inspiring stories of courage

Everybody has ideas of new things they'd like to try. Sometimes those ideas pan out and sometimes they don't. The thing is, we'll never know until we try, and that takes courage.

Kids can learn a lot by reading stories that demonstrate courage, clear thinking, and grit.

Kendal Rautzhan

That's what the books reviewed today reflect, in three distinctive ways. Ask your local librarian and bookseller to direct you to others. Kids will thank you!

Books to Borrow

The following book is available at many public libraries.

"One Hen: How One Small Loan Made a Big Difference" by Katie Smith Milway, illustrated by Eugenie Fernandes, Kids Can Press, 32 pages

Read aloud: age 6-9.

Read yourself: age 8-9.

In Kojo's poor village in Ghana, Africa, money and food are scarce. When Kojo is given a small loan, he has an idea. Kojo buys one brown hen so his family will have more to eat. Kojo saves a few of the precious eggs and sells them, repays his loan, and soon sells enough eggs to buy another hen. Eventually Kojo's one small loan changes the lives of his family, his community, his town and his country.

Based on the true story of Kwabena Darko, One Hen demonstrates how change happens in the world: one person, one family, one community at a time. Filled with hope, courage, and determination, One Hen is thoroughly inspiring.

Books to Buy

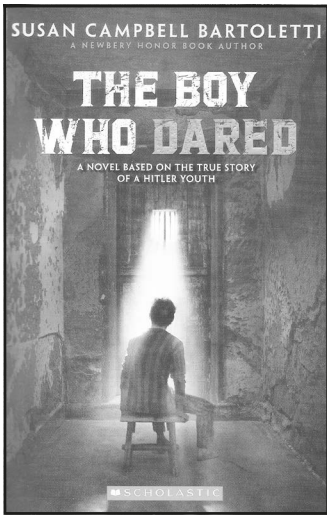

The following books are available at favorite bookstores.

"The Boy Who Dared: A Novel Based on the True Story of a Hitler Youth" by Susan Campbell Bartoletti, photos various credits, Scholastic, 2019, 201 pages, $7.99 paperback

Read aloud: age 9-12 and older.

Read yourself: age 10-12 and older.

As the Nazis are becoming powerful in Germany, young Helmuth Hübener is swept up in the patriotic fever of how the Nazis will make Germany great again. As Helmuth learns more and secretly listens to BBC broadcasts on an illegal shortwave radio, he begins to realize the Germans are lying to their citizens. His eyes are opened further when he realizes Germans are being censored, the terrible treatment of Germany's Jewish citizens, and how propaganda is misleading the entire German nation. Feeling that everyone has the right to know the truth, Helmuth begins to write and distribute pamphlets with accurate information he learns from the BBC. Eventually he is found out, accused of treason, and executed at the young age of seventeen.

Based on the true story of Helmuth Hübener, author Bartoletti crafts her fictionalized version of his story through a series of flashbacks as Helmuth is in prison. From his boyhood memories and awakening to the atrocities around him, Bartoletti presents Helmuth's courage and heroic acts in the pursuit of truth, whatever the outcome. Meticulously researched and beautifully written, The Boy Who Dared is an important book in many regards.

"Lost in the Antarctic: The Doomed Voyage of the Endurance" by Tod Olson, Scholastic, 2019, 209 pages, $7.99 paperback

Read aloud: age 8-12.

Read yourself: age 8/9-12.

In 1914, Ernest Shackleton led twenty-eight men aboard the sailing vessel Endurance to the Antarctic continent. Their goal was to be the first expedition to cross the entire continent. But in October of 1915, the ship had been frozen solid in the ice for the last nine months. Soon the pressure of millions of tons of ice crushed the ship and Shackleton and his men had to abandon it. With their meager food supply diminishing and trapped on the ice in unimaginable frigid conditions, survival took on new meaning.

Four months later their once stable ice floe they called home was breaking apart. With no other choice, the men set out in their three tiny lifeboats and miraculously made their way 80 miles to uninhabited Elephant Island through turbulent, dangerous, unpredictable seas. But their journey wasn't over yet. Shackleton knew he needed to find help and, based on ocean currents and winds, took five crew members with him in a small lifeboat to row to South Georgia, 800 miles away. If they safely made the journey, they could find the whaling station and rescue for the men left on Elephant Island.

A genuine nail-biting, inspiring true story of enormous acts of courage and persistence, Lost in the Antarctic: The Doomed Voyage of the Endurance will have kids racing through the pages and pondering whether they, too, would have had the endurance to survive.

DAILY HOROSCOPES

Sunday, January 27, 2019

Change will catch you by surprise. Be ready to act based on what's important to you. Don't give in to pressure or demands. Protect your integrity, reputation and standards. How you present who you are and what you have to offer will determine your success.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) An emotional incident will leave you feeling uncomfortable. Don't take part in something just because someone else does. It's OK to say no and follow your own path.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A poor decision will lead to financial loss or legal implications. Look for a way to protect your investments, reputation and rights. Patience and honesty will be necessary.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Take care of your personal responsibilities before you move on to pleasurable activities. A change will encourage you to be more active and update your appearance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Emotions will mount if you let stress fester. Engaging in physical activity and getting rid of the things you no longer need will help relieve tension. Don't ignore what needs to be done.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Listen more while revealing less. If you ask questions and show interest, you'll be offered information that will make you think twice about the people you associate with.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Getting together with friends or relatives and engaging in projects or pastimes that are geared toward people of all ages will change your perspective on how you want to proceed personally.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Don't feel obliged to make a change. Listen to what others have to say, but don't buy into someone else's plan. An emotional decision will lead to regret. Bide your time.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Look at your options, but don't make an impulsive move. You are better off being an onlooker for the time being if you want to avoid making a mistake.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Have fun by going out with people who build you up. Don't feel you must make a decision if you aren't ready, regardless of what someone else does or says.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Emotional matters will escalate if you get into a debate with someone. Rely on past experience to guide you. Concentrate on a creative outlet to ease your stress.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Make changes that will render your home more inviting. Don't lend or borrow money or possessions, or give anyone access to private information that could be used against you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Stick to the facts, live by the rules and regulations, and don't follow the crowd. Relying on your experience will help you avoid making a decision based on emotions instead of common sense.

Monday, January 28, 2019

Look for opportunities and incorporate positive change into your life. A creative outlet will ease stress and help you keep personal matters in perspective. Intelligence and charm will gain you support and necessary favors. Being helpful will prove satisfying and encourage greater productivity.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — You can resolve an emotional issue if you communicate openly. A little give-and-take will help you bring about the changes you want to see happen.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — Handle your personal and financial affairs yourself. Use common sense when tempted by a pie-in-the-sky idea. A steady pace will help you achieve your goal.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Put more effort into learning and into honing your skills. Your presentation style will be impressive. Approach someone you think could benefit from what you have to offer.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — An emotional response will cause havoc. Don't judge others if you don't want to be subject to ridicule. Avoid taking action without being fully prepared to deal with the aftermath.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Be smart and charming, but don't make promises you can't fulfill. You'll pick up information quickly and impress onlookers if you show interest, ask questions and are observant.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Do something that makes you happy. Start a project that will inspire you to do things differently or make plans to spend more time with a loved one.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Don't start something you cannot finish. Be honest about your feelings and what you want to see happen. You may not please everyone, but you'll feel better moving forward.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Expect someone to overreact or evade issues that could change the dynamics of your relationship. When in doubt, ask questions and make suggestions before jumping to conclusions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — You may want to make a change, but first make sure those who will be affected by your choices are on board or at least informed. Be articulate and forthright.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Your actions will speak louder than words. Do your research and look at every angle before you make a decision. An offer may sound amazing, but will fall short in actuality.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Call in a favor if it will help bring about a positive change. Prepare a space conducive to developing something you want to pursue. Personal change is encouraged.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Finish what you start. You'll come up with a unique idea that can change the way you live. Hard work will pay off, as long as you don't act prematurely.

Gratitude needed for services provided

Dear Annie: We live in Florida, and my sister and brother-in-law are coming today. They will be here for six months and are expecting us to pick them up from the airport later. I also have a brother and sister-in-law, who are coming soon and will also need transportation. They both live nearby, and we check their condos during their six-month absences. We make ourselves available if a repairman is needed, and we pick up their junk mail.

All we receive are verbal thank-you's, although both families are well-off. I think a gift card to a restaurant or paying for a dinner or a round of golf would be nice. I'm beginning to resent being taken advantage of because many others in our community pay for the services we provide.

If you could print this, it would be helpful, as we pass along our newspaper to them. If not, thank you for listening to me vent! — Frustrated in Florida

Dear Frustrated: I am going to print your letter, not so that your sister and brother and their spouses get the message — you should tell them yourself how you feel — but to highlight a very important issue that you touched on: gratitude.

According to Harvard Medical School, "with gratitude, people acknowledge the goodness in their lives. ... As a result, gratitude also helps people connect to something larger than themselves as individuals — whether to other people, nature, or a higher power."

With this definition in mind, try to invoke a feeling of gratitude for the fact that you have siblings who love and trust you enough to want to spend time with you.

Holding on to resentment only hurts you. Let the air out of your resentment balloon by letting them know that you are feeling a bit underappreciated. My guess is that they have no idea and will respond well to your honesty. As much as we would love for people to be mind readers when it comes to our emotions and feelings, they are not. That is why it is important in any relationship to express how you feel.

I leave you with a beautiful quotation from a beautiful poet, Ralph Waldo Emerson:

"Cultivate the habit of being grateful for every good thing that comes to you, and to give thanks continuously. And because all things have contributed to your advancement, you should include all things in your gratitude."

Dear Annie: Now that I'm retired, can I go back in time and give my 5-year-old self some advice? Here's what it would be: Listen more, and talk less. Never complain about anything. If you feel the need to complain, then write down all your complaints in a notebook. When the book is full, destroy it and start over. When you start working as a teenager — and all through your adult life — put 10 percent of your earnings in a separate bank account. Don't touch this money until retirement. Be nice to people, with no exceptions. Be charitable to those who can't repay you. And cheer up! Even at age 5, you know that most people on the planet are worse off than you. Don't take credit for your accomplishments. Let others give you that. Walk more, and eat less. Tell the truth always, even if it hurts. Lastly, never make fun of others. Never. If you feel the need to make fun of someone, make fun of yourself. Trust me; you'll have plenty of material. — Older and Wiser (and Retired) in New York

Dear Older and Wiser: A-plus advice, especially that last part. Thanks for sharing your hard-earned wisdom with the world.

Runa Belle Spray

She was born prematurely Jan. 21, 2019, at Norton Women and Children’s Hospital in Louisville, to Nicholas Scott Spray and Samantha Ellen Turner. Her mommy and daddy had helped her fight a courageous battle to survive until birth. She was a strong little fighter and her name reflects her will to live, it means “Mighty Strength.” She blessed her mommy and daddy with the sound of her voice, they never thought they would be able to hear her sweet voice. She fought the courageous fight to live for a day and a half. Her parents will greatly miss their sweet little baby girl, but they have the promise that someday they will see her again as she rests on the Master’s lap.

She is survived by her parents of Madison; her maternal grandma, Kara Turner of Milton, Kentucky; her maternal grandparents, Tommy and Mary Turner of Madison; her paternal grandma, Glenda Jo Spray of Hanover; her maternal great-grandma, Jeanine Green of Milton; her maternal great-grandparents, Carolyn and Verlin Cox of Jamestown, Tennessee; her paternal great-grandma, Neva Laraway of Hanover; and several other relatives.

She was preceded in death by her grandfather, Edwin Spray, who died Jan. 4, 2009.

There will be a private service Sunday at Morgan & Nay Funeral Centre. Burial will follow in Moffett Cemetery in Milton, Kentucky.

A private visitation will be Sunday at the funeral home.

Crash claims life of New Albany father

Courier staff report

Indiana State Police report a pedestrian was hit and killed on I-65 northbound in Clark County about 4 a.m. Friday while trying to help his daughter who was stranded in northbound lanes after running out of fuel.

A preliminary investigation found that two troopers were stationary on the right shoulder of I-65 northbound near the 11.8 mile marker awaiting a tow truck to remove a vehicle from a previous Operating While Intoxicated arrest, a news release said. At the same time, a third trooper was also stationary on I-65 northbound near the 12.4 mile marker assisting a stranded motorist who said she had run out of fuel and who had contacted her father to assist her.

As the two troopers waited for the assistance of a tow truck, a southbound driver stopped his vehicle on I-65 near the 11.8 mile marker, left his vehicle and attempted to cross all six lanes of I-65, apparently trying to contact the troopers, the news release said. After making it across all southbound lanes and over the median barrier, the subject was struck and killed by a green 2007 Camry in the middle lane of northbound I-65. The release said it is believed the deceased was then stuck by an unidentified semi-truck which continued northbound.

The pedestrian was identified as Earl L. Gresham, 73, of New Albany. It was later discovered that Gresham was the father of the stranded motorist at the 12.4 mile marker.

The crash remains under investigation.

18 now filed for offices in primary

By TALI HUNT
Candidate filings stand at 18 after Friday for this year’s primary election in the spring. Democrats Jennifer Shelton, Phil Mullins and Thomas Sedam Sr. filed for candidacy in Hanover and Madison municipal races. Shelton filed for Hanover Clerk Treasurer. Shelton has served in an at-large seat on the Hanover Town Council in the past and ran for the Jefferson County Assessor’s seat in the 2018 elections. She is as an administrative assistant for Jefferson County’s 911 office. Mullins filed for Madison City Clerk Treasurer. Mullins ran for Madison mayor in 2015 but lost to Jan Vetrhus in the primary and more recently applied to fill the District 1 City Council in 2018. Mullins is a Hanover College alumnus and is the president of Madison-based Windward International, serving corporate, philanthropic, educational, political and governmental clients. Sedam filed for City Council District 4. He ran for the council seat in the 2015 election but lost to Republican Troy Morgan in the general election. He is retired and is a member of the Major Samuel Woodfill Post 9 of the American Legion. These candidates join the 15 that filed earlier in the month. They include: Madison mayor: Democrat Julie Berry, Republican Bob Courtney and Republican Andrew Forrester District 1 Madison councilmember: Republican Mike Pittman and Democrat Jan Vetrhus District 2 Madison councilmember: Democrat Brad Wood III District 3 Madison councilmember: Democrat Robert Smith District 5 Madison councilmember: Democrat Darrell Henderson At-large Madison councilmember: Democrat David Alcorn, Republican James Bartlett and Democrat Daniel Dattilo Madison City treasurer: Republican Rick Berry District 2, Hanover Town Council: Democrat Kathi Scroggins District 3, Hanover Town Council: Democrat Debbie Kroger Hanover Clerk Treasurer: Republican Keith Mefford Filing opened on Jan. 9. Feb. 8 is the last day to file for the primary election that will be in May.

Should local taxpayers be forced to pick up the tab?

Out-of-area dealers add to crowded Bartholomew jail

By MARK WEBBER
(Columbus) The Republic
The Bartholomew County Jail is already facing overcrowding after being forced by the state to house all low-level felons as they serve their sentences. But should local taxpayers also be forced to pick up the tab to house large numbers of drug dealers with little to no connection to the Columbus area? That was a question that prompted a 10-minute discussion recently between Sheriff’s Capt. Dave Steinkoenig and the three Bartholomew County commissioners. Part of the discussion was initiated as the Bartholomew County Jail continues to run over-capacity most days. On Tuesday, the jail had 235 inmates, which is over its current capacity of 232, according to jail officials. The conversation was initiated by commissioner Larry Kleinhenz after the Jan. 9 arrest of six people after a pound and a half of methamphetamine, as well as three guns, were confiscated at an east-side Columbus home. Kleinhenz said he called Sheriff Matt Myers to congratulate him on making the arrests before the methamphetamine could be processed and sold. Only two of the six suspects were charged with felony drug dealing. The others face lesser charges such as maintaining or visiting a common nuisance. The sheriff’s department acknowledged that some of the six arrested have prior drug convictions in other parts of the county. “This wasn’t the first time (some of these suspects) were caught with a large amount of meth,” Kleinhenz said. “It’s scary. It’s alarming.” Steinkoenig — who confirmed the jail population has been at or above capacity in recent weeks — told the commissioners the methamphetamine confiscated on Jan. 9 had been imported. “That meth came across the border,” Steinkoenig said. When all matters in this case are considered, commissioner Carl Lienhoop said he felt the facts should be sufficient to allow Bartholomew County to transfer the most serious alleged drug dealers elsewhere. But the only time that scenario is likely to play out is when a federal agency — such as the Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) — decides to file felony charges against a suspected drug dealer, instead of the state, Steinkoenig said. On occasion, information forwarded to federal law enforcement officials on a local drug arrest has prompted federal officials to pick up suspected drug dealers at the Bartholomew County Jail within a day of their apprehension, the sheriff’s captain said. “But it’s entirely up to the feds,” Steinkoenig said. “Most often, if (drug dealers) are arrested in our county, they are going to be housed at our jail.” Nine times out of 10, the courts will order a foreign-born drug dealer to serve a sentence before any effort is made toward deportation, Steinkoenig said. However, there have been agreements made in some cases where local charges are dropped in order to speed up deportation processes, Steinkoenig said. The combination of handling the consequences of the opioid crisis, as well as housing low-level felons as they serve their sentences, has had a significant negative impact on the number of individuals in the Bartholomew County Jail, Kleinhenz said. “Ten years ago, our county jail was a county jail,” Kleinhenz said. “Now, it’s more like a prison.” “Very much so,” Steinkoenig said.

read the study and learn what the county’s needs are when it comes to the new jail. The needs include the number of beds, staffing and estimated operations budget. Commissioner David Bramer reminded the council that the Exploratory Jail Committee meetings have all been open to the public to attend and advertised as such. The council and commission also briefly discussed options on where the $50,000 could come from in the county’s budget. After the joint meeting, the commissioners hired Jack Krouse as an owner’s representative for the jail project. Krouse is the president of Construction Control Inc. The commissioners approved his contract for $150 per hour on an as-needed basis, contingent on final legal approval. Bramer, who is also a member of the jail committee, explained that the jail committee recommended hiring an owner’s representative to help guide the process as an expert source to ensure the county is following state codes and to provide guidance when the county requires it. The commission and council will meet jointly on Thursday, Jan. 31 at 5:30 p.m. at Jefferson County Courthouse.

NEW JAIL BEING BUILT

The county is building a new jail after being cited for several areas of noncompliance by the state in 2017. A state inspection report described several issues stemming from overcrowding at the jail. The 2017 report indicated the jail is overcrowded, lacks beds, toilet and shower facilities and adequate space and is understaffed. After the inspection, the county commissioners and council were given 180 days to make a plan of action to correct the areas of noncompliance. The Exploratory Jail Committee was created in response to the citations and were tasked with researching options such as building a new jail. The committee includes representatives from the commission, council, sheriff’s department and community corrections. Through a feasibility study done by RQAW Architecture, the committee learned the county needs a jail large enough to accommodate 250 to 300 beds. The current jail’s capacity is 109 inmates.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Colts re-sign Vinatieri

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Kicker Adam Vinatieri at age 46 will play another season with the Indianapolis Colts.

His new deal was announced by general manager Chris Ballard on Friday on 1070 The Fan, a local radio station that broadcasts Indy's games. Terms were not immediately available.

Vinatieri will have a chance to add to his NFL career records of 2,600 points and 690 field goals. His next game will be No. 354, breaking a tie with Gary Anderson for second on the all-time list.

He could join Anderson and George Blanda as the only players to appear in an NFL game at 47. Vinatieri's birthday is Dec. 28.

Reds farmhand suspended

NEW YORK (AP) — Cincinnati pitcher Junior Harding, Minnesota pitcher Alex Schick and Baltimore outfielder Trey Whitley have been suspended for 50 games each under baseball's minor league drug program.

Harding, a 22-year-old right-hander, was a 17th-round draft choice in 2017 and is on the roster of the rookie-level Arizona League Reds. He also did not appear in a game last year.

Schick tested positive for amphetamine, a banned stimulant, the commissioner's officer said Friday. Harding tested positive for Methylphenidate, also a stimulant.

Whitley was disciplined following a second positive test for a drug of abuse.

Schick, a 24-year-old right-hander, was a sixth-round draft pick in 2016 and is on the roster of Class A Cedar Rapids of the Midwest League. His 2017 season was cut short after two starts because of elbow inflammation, and he has not pitched in a game since.

Whitley, who turns 19 next month, was a 28th-round draft pick last year and hit .160 with six RBIs in 31 games for the rookie level Gulf League Orioles.

Five players have been suspended this year under the minor league program plus Kansas City pitcher Eric Skoglund under the major league program. There were 72 suspensions last year plus 10 under the big league drug program.

Duke at Syracuse sold out

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — The on-campus attendance record for college basketball is expected to be broken when No. 2 Duke visits Syracuse next month.

Syracuse University says Friday all available tickets for the Feb. 23 game against the Blue Devils in the Carrier Dome are sold out. More seating was added at the start of this season, so the current record of 35,446 is expected to be eclipsed. The final total will be announced during the game.

Syracuse recently beat Duke in overtime at Cameron Indoor Stadium.

The teams set the record in February 2014 and matched it the next year in the Carrier Dome. The previous record was 35,012, in February 2013 against Georgetown.

Syracuse aims for another attendance record two days later when the No. 13 Orange women host top-ranked Notre Dame. The record for Syracuse women's basketball is 11,021, when the Orange hosted the Irish in February 2017.

Built in 1980, the Dome is the largest on-campus basketball venue in the nation. It seats 35,446 for basketball and 49,262 for football.

MLB switching to Nike

NEW YORK (AP) — The swoosh is expected to be on the front of Major League Baseball uniforms starting in 2020.

Nike will succeed Majestic Athletic as Major League Baseball's uniform supplier for the 2020 season. The swoosh logo likely will move to a more prominent position on jersey fronts. The Majestic logo is currently on the sleeve.

The 10-year deal announced Friday replaces an agreement announced in December 2016 for Under Armour to replace Majestic. The online sportswear retailer Fanatics will manufacture and distribute licensed versions of the Nike uniforms and training wear to consumers.

Majestic has manufactured MLB batting practice jerseys since 1982 and has been the exclusive supplier of game uniforms since 2005.

Southwestern 89, Clarksville 62 No. 1 Rebs dominate Generals

By DAVID CAMPBELL

Courier Staff Writer

CLARKSVILLE — Southwestern's Rebels spotted Clarksville an eight-point early lead and then showed their hosts why they are ranked No. 1 in the state by dominating the final three quarters and rolling to an 89-62 boys basketball win on Friday.

Clarksville came out of the gate firing away, hitting five 3-pointers in the first quarter and building a 20-12 lead less than six minutes into the game.

But a few defensive adjustments, coupled with renewed energy, flipped scoreboard quickly. Southwestern pulled to within two (20-18) by the end of the first period and led 42-33 at halftime before outscoring the Generals 30-14 in the third quarter to blow open the game.

"We were in the wrong coverage. That's my fault, I'll take the blame for not getting it straightened out before halftime," Southwestern coach Jerry Bomholt said of the first quarter. "Then we got it straightened out. How often do you give up 13 threes and win by 27? The third quarter was the key for us."

Four different players knocked down triples for Clarksville, which hit nearly every one of its 3-pointers from the lower left corner. But those threes couldn't slow Southwestern once the Rebels got rolling.

After playing Clarksville straight up for much of the first half, Bomholt switched between both a full-court and a half-court trap with devastating effect in the second half. And once the tempo of the game increased, Southwestern ran the Generals out of their own gym by scoring nearly at will.

Clarksville (3-11) opened the third quarter with a 3-pointer by Jaren Starks but Southwestern scored the next 10-straight points to vault ahead by 16. The Rebels then closed the quarter with a 15-3 run to turn the game into a rout.

Southwestern (16-1) hit five 3-pointers in the game but much of its offense came from the free-throw line. The Rebels went 14-for-17 in the first half and finished the game 22-of-25 thanks in large part to an aggressive Clarksville defense that seemed determined

Cubs play No. 9 Dragons tight until Silver Creek surges in fourth, 75-62

By ROB LAFARY

Courier Staff Writer

sports@madisoncourier.com

Madison showed its ability to compete neck-and-neck with Class 3A No. 9 Silver Creek but the Dragons eventually pulled away in the fourth quarter and escaped Salm Gymnasium with a 75-62 win on Friday night.

The Cubs spent three quarters giving Silver Creek (14-2) fits, tying the Dragons early in the third quarter, but Madison was never able to quite get over the hump.

Silver Creek finally got a stranglehold in the final minute of the game but despite the fact, Madison head coach Mark McFarland was pleased with his team's performance after the Cubs had not played a game in exactly two weeks.

"I thought we played pretty good," McFarland said. "We got to within a possession or two and we got into spots where we were down four or six but Silver Creek came down and hit some big baskets."

The Dragons started the game with intentions of putting away Madison early. Zane Gross scored four points, Ty Kessinger scored three points and Jack Hawkins added a 3-pointer as part of a 10-0 run but the Cubs stormed back before the lead could increase on two occasions.

No. 5 Mich. rides fast start to 69-46 rout at IU Hoosiers drop 6th straight game

By MICHAEL MAROT

AP Sports Writer

BLOOMINGTON — No. 5 Michigan started fast Friday night and never let up.

It was everything coach John Beilein hoped to see at Indiana.

The Wolverines' defense was virtually impenetrable, the offense was balanced and they delivered the knockout punch right from the start.

Ignas Brazdeikis scored 20 points, Xavier Simpson added 12 and after scoring the first 17 points of the game, Michigan pulled away for a 69-46 victory.

"I don't think anybody realizes how you envy that situation where we got off to that great start, how difficult that is to manage when you get off to that great start because no matter what happens it's nothing to be up that much that early. Nothing," Beilein said. "To manage it and have your kids persevere through it is really good."

The Wolverines (18-1, 7-1 Big Ten) aren't just winning — they're making it look easy.

Michigan has won two straight since suffering its first loss, six straight over the Hoosiers and two in a row in Bloomington. The reason: Beilein's defense took full advantage of the struggling Hoosiers, who have lost six straight.

The Wolverines jumped to their enormous lead by forcing the Hoosiers into 10 consecutive missed shots, not allowing a point for more than seven minutes, not allowing a basket for nearly and never allowing the Hoosiers (12-8, 3-6) to get close enough to be a serious threat on a night public address announcer Chuck Crabb counted down the seconds on each possession at the south end of Assembly Hall because the shot clock was broken.

"Our team in general right now is soft, and we're also for whatever reason right now scared, and you can just tell by the way that we played," Hoosiers coach Archie Miller said. "The fight isn't there right now, and the confidence isn't there on either end of the floor to be able to capitalize on any type of opportunity that we have."

How ugly was it?

They crowd wildly when Indiana finally scored its first points on two free throws from Durham with 12:57 left and again when Durham scored their first basket with 10:15 left in the half. They trailed 33-18 at halftime, their lowest total in any half this season.

Indiana opened the second half with four straight baskets in the lane, closing to 38-29 on Phinisee's 3 with 16:47 left. But Michigan answered with a 12-3 spurt to make it 50-32 and the Hoosiers never got close again.

"We were really good after that (spurt) as well," Beilein said. "Our defense was so solid the entire night."

Juwan Morgan finished with 16 points and 12 rebounds to lead Indiana.

BIG PICTURE

Michigan: The Wolverines made a statement in Bloomington. Their suffocating defense is good enough to make another Final Four run and their balanced offense gives them enough options to make them tough to defend.

Indiana: Another sluggish start doomed the Hoosiers. Miller is desperately trying to mix and match lineups to find a third consistent scorer.

HONORING RAYL

The Hoosiers honored the late Jimmy Rayl with a moment of silence before tip-off.

Rayl died Sunday at age 77. The two-time All-American was named the Hoosiers' MVP in 1962 and still holds the school's single-game record with 56 points, which he did twice — in January 1962 and February 1963.

STAT PACK

Michigan: Jon Teske had 11 points and Charles Matthews had 10 points and 11 rebounds. ... Simpson had five assists, giving him 299 in his career. ... Beilein moved within one win of

Pro Bowlers call for accountability

By MARK LONG
AP Sports Writer

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. — Jacksonville Jaguars defensive end Calais Campbell watched the NFL's conference championship games on his phone while flying home from South Africa last weekend. The stream cut in and out occasionally, causing Campbell to think for a brief moment that he missed something when no flag was thrown on Los Angeles Rams cornerback Nickell Robey-Coleman late in the NFC title game. Turns out, Campbell saw it perfectly clear and was stunned officials chose not to penalize Robey-Coleman for flattening Saints receiver Tommylee Lewis before the ball arrived.

“Very, very surprised,” Campbell said.

The now-infamous no-call has been the talk of Pro Bowl week, with several players calling for better officiating and more accountability for those in black and white. Others suggest expanding the use of video replay.

“You just make a better call,” Philadelphia Eagles safety Malcolm Jenkins said. “I know there’s been talk about replay. But you really didn’t need replay to make that call. It was just a missed call. It was that simple. That happens. You have human error, but it’s unfortunate when that changes everything that you’ve worked for as a team and how hard it’s been to get back to that spot. That’s tough.”

No one at the league’s annual all-star game went as far as retiring New Orleans Saints tight end Benjamin Watson did, though. Watson ripped NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell on Thursday for his public silence following the blown call.

Watson posted a letter to Goodell on Twitter, saying “we all realize that football is an imperfect game, played, coached and officiated by imperfect people. What occurred last Sunday in New Orleans, though, was outside of that expected and accepted norm.”

“Your continued silence on this matter is unbecoming of the position you hold, detrimental to the integrity of the game and disrespectful and dismissive to football fans everywhere,” Watson continued. “From the locker room to Park Ave., accountability is what makes our league great. Lead by example. We are waiting.”

Officials could have — and by most accounts should have — flagged Robey-Coleman for pass interference and helmet-to-helmet contact during the play. Drew Brees’ pass fell incomplete inside the Rams 10-yard line with 1:45 left in a tie game. The Saints settled for a field goal. The Rams tied the game on Greg Zuerlein’s 48-yarder in regulation and won it in overtime with his 57-yarder.

“How many times have you played a football game and seen the call that should have been called but didn’t, or a call that got called and it shouldn’t have been called?” Campbell said. “It happens all the time in this game. It’s just part of football. You get upset for a second, but then you go keep playing ball. The Saints did have a chance. They had the ball in overtime, had a chance to go out there and win it. This game, it’s tough.” But the overwhelming sentiment at the Pro Bowl was something needs to be done to prevent errors as egregious as the one in the NFC title game.

“The tough thing is we have things that are reviewable, things that aren’t reviewable,” Buffalo Bills defensive lineman Kyle Williams said. “You can’t review it inside of two minutes. I don’t know why we put limitations on things, but at the same time, games have missed calls one way or another. But you hated to see something that appeared to be that way finish a game like that, finish a season. For us as a league, it’s hard to limit when you can and when you can’t review those things and do all that.”

Added Dallas Cowboys line-backer Leighton Vander Esch: “If dudes are missing calls on the field, they’ve got to make them up in the box.”

Several others echoed Vander Esch’s argument, which essentially was: What’s the point of having extra officials upstairs and more watching at the league office in New York if no one can step in and correct an obvious mistake?

“Honestly, full speed, I was like, ‘He kind of got there early, but it was bang-bang,’” New York Giants safety/special teams ace Mike Thomas said. “You slow it down, clearly he got there early. I was like, ‘Ohhhh.’ It looked way worse when you slowed it down.

“We’ve been calling for — players, coaches, fans — for replays for pass interference calls anyway. There’s a bunch of times they throw it on DBs and we feel like we’re in great position. I think you just make all those major calls like that reviewable and just got from there.”

Not everyone was so eager to broaden use of replay.

Campbell, for one, urged fans and colleagues to slow down. He believes more replay would only muck up the tempo of games and make them longer.

“You cannot open up a can of worms,” said Campbell, an 11-year veteran and a team player rep. “But what you can do is you can try to prepare the referees better because they can’t miss that call. In those clutch situations, in that moment, he has to make that call. And whatever the consequences are for him missing the call, maybe make those public so we all know and everybody feels better. Make them be held accountable and they will have the motivation to call it the right way.”

Kentucky vs. Kansas showdown highlights SEC/Big 12 Challenge

By STEVE MEGARGEE
and DAVID BRANDT
AP Sports Writers

Some things to watch in Southeastern Conference basketball this week:

GAME OF THE WEEKEND

No. 9 Kansas at No. 8 Kentucky: This matchup of two top-10 teams is the headline attraction in today’s SEC/Big 12 Challenge. Kentucky (15-3) has won five straight, beating No. 16 Auburn (No. 14 at the time) and No. 22 Mississippi State in its last two games. Kansas (16-3) has won four of its last five. Kentucky owns a perfect 11-0 home record, while Kansas is 1-3 in true road games.

LOOKING AHEAD

Can the SEC get the best of the Big 12? The Big 12 dominated the early years of its annual challenge matchup with the SEC, but the SEC has rallied lately. The SEC went 6-4 in this event last year, marking the first time it had ever won the majority of games. The two conferences split the 10 matchups in 2017. The Big 12 owns a 29-21 overall record in this event thanks to its 20-10 edge in its first three seasons. The bad news for the SEC is that three of its ranked teams won’t be playing in this event. No. 16 Auburn and No. 22 Mississippi State are facing each other instead while No. 25 LSU visits Missouri.

NUMBERS GAME

The SEC has six teams in the Top 25 for the first time since January 2003. The SEC’s six ranked teams are No. 1 Tennessee, No. 8 Kentucky, No. 16 Auburn, No. 20 Mississippi, No. 22 Mississippi State and No. 25 LSU. ... Tennessee has 13 straight victories for its longest winning streak since the 1922-23 season. ... Tennessee’s Grant Williams went 23 of 23 on free throws Wednesday in an 88-83 overtime victory over Vanderbilt . He was one off the NCAA Division I single-game record of 24 consecutive made free throws, set by Oklahoma State’s Arlen Clark on March 7, 1959. ... LSU is 5-0 in SEC competition for the first time since 2006. ... South Carolina is 5-1 in SEC competition and 5-7 in nonconference games. ... Alabama has won eight of its last 12 games against ranked teams, including a 74-53 blowout of Ole Miss on Tuesday.

IMPACT PERFORMER

South Carolina forward Chris Silva showed Tuesday what he’s capable of doing when he avoids foul trouble. Silva shot 11 of 12 from the field and had 32 points, 14 rebounds and four blocks in an 80-77 victory over Auburn. Silva delivered that big performance after fouling out in consecutive games against Vanderbilt and LSU. He played just 13 minutes against Vanderbilt and eight minutes against LSU.

ON THE WOMEN’S SIDE

No. 7 Mississippi State is the only SEC program ranked among the nation’s top 14 teams this week. The other ranked SEC teams are No. 15 Kentucky, No. 19 South Carolina, No. 24 Texas A&M and No. 25 Missouri. Mississippi State will be playing the rest of the season without forward Chloe Bibby, who injured her knee last week in a victory over South Carolina . The 6-foot-1 Australian was averaging 12.6 points.

Young scorers lead way for NHL All-Star weekend

By JOSH DUBOW
AP Sports Writer

SAN JOSE, Calif. — It is only fitting that Connor McDavid, Auston Matthews and Nathan MacKinnon are serving as captains for this weekend’s NHL All-Star game.

The three high-scoring forwards are 23 or younger. They are part of a youth movement that is taking over the NHL and will be on center stage when the league’s best players gather at the Shark Tank for their annual midseason celebration.

“It’s a young man’s league,” said Chicago forward Patrick Kane, now an elder statesman at age 30. “These guys come in and maybe in the past your prime was 26, 27 or 28. Now your prime is maybe 22, 23 or 24. It’s definitely become a younger man’s game. A lot of teams these days are expecting their young draft picks and younger kids to come in and help the team right away. You’ll see more of these young guys get a chance.”

Scoring is on pace for its highest mark in more than two decades heading into the All-Star break, thanks in large part to some skilled youngsters who will be on display this weekend like the three All-Star captains along with the league’s leading scorer, 25-year-old Nikita Kucherov of Tampa Bay, and 25-year-old Calgary star Johnny Gaudreau.

None of the league’s top six scorers heading into the break has turned 26 and there are more All-Star skaters this weekend 22 and younger (11) than in their 30s (8). In all, 58 percent of the goals in the NHL this season have been scored by players 26 or younger.

“That’s just the way the game is trending,” Matthews said. “It seems a lot younger now, a lot faster, more speed and more skill. A lot of younger guys are coming in and making an impact immediately. That wasn’t the case in years past but it’s kind of changing now. It’s pretty fun to see.”

The league had long been looking to increase scoring by reducing the size of goalie pads, among other rules changes, and it seems to have finally materialized. Teams head into the break averaging 3.03 goals per game, which is on pace for the highest-scoring season since the 3.14 in 1995-96, when Mario Lemieux and Wayne Gretzky were still among the league’s biggest stars.

There’s still a long way to go to get back to the level of the go-go 1980s, which featured a single-season team average of 4.01 goals per game in 1981-82 — the highest in the league since the end of World War II.

But there has been an 18 percent increase in scoring since the post-expansion low of 2.57 goals per game for teams in 2003-04, before a lockout canceled the following season and led to rule changes.

“The game’s being run by the twentysomethings now,” Tampa Bay coach Jon Cooper said. “Players have a positive arrogance when they come into the league that they can do anything and they try it. That’s what makes them so good. They’re not sitting there saying this might not be the right thing to do in this situation. Players are trying it and that’s why you’re seeing what you’re seeing with the skill level in this game. These players are so good.”

There was a big jump in the first year back in 2005-06 thanks to a crackdown on stick work and obstruction that led to more power plays. But scoring fell gradually in the ensuing years and was down to 2.67 three years ago before starting to rise again.

An influx of young stars like McDavid, Matthews, Mathew Barzal of the New York Islanders and Vancouver rookie Elias Pettersson helped contribute to the 13 percent jump in scoring in a three-year span.

“I came in the league out of college and I was 22 or 23 and I was the youngest guy on the team,” Columbus 29-year-old forward Cam Atkinson said. “Now it’s unheard of if you don’t have two or three guys ing is ongoing with the potential for changes after feedback from players, teams and broadcasters. But the league is confident in the accuracy of the radio frequency-based system and its application for 1,271 regular-season games and the playoffs.

“This will continue to evolve and be monitored and tested and perfected over the course of the rest of this season and parts of next season,” NHL chief revenue officer Keith Wachtel said. “But this is our opportunity to say that we are far enough along where the commissioner is comfortable with the data and our broadcasters are comfortable and the NHLPA is comfortable that we can go ahead and unleash this, which we’re obviously excited about.”

The six-year effort included what NHL senior vice president of business development David Lehanski called “unforeseen” challenges, primarily with how to make the puck.

“A lot of testing (was done) on the performance of the puck both with regard to its durability but also its playability,” Lehanski said. “The puck itself is really something unlike anything else ... any other sport has really had to contend with.”

Researchers and engineers at the Fraunhofer Institute and Jogmo believe they have reached to the point where players don’t notice the microchips on their shoulder pads and can’t tell the difference between the new “smart puck” and the frozen rubber that has been part of hockey for more than a century.

“It’s an active puck, so it needs to be activated before it goes on the ice and deactivated after that,” Jogmo founder and CEO Martin Bachmayer said. “It’s kind of a different handling for the officials and for the people in the box. ... That’s the kind of stuff we try to figure out in the next couple of months before the season starts: how to really make this right.”

Puck and player tracking is coming to the NHL next season. A sneak preview is coming up this weekend, too.

Commissioner Gary Bettman announced the long-expected news Friday during All-Star Weekend in San Jose, California, calling it a “breakthrough that is years in the making.” The league is partnering with German company Jogmo World Corp. to put microchips on player jerseys and inside game pucks. Real-time data will be gathered by antennas in all 31 NHL arenas.

The NHL joins the NFL as the two major North American professional sports leagues with wearable tracking technology. The NBA and Major League Baseball use sophisticated systems that can include radar and cameras.

“Being on the forefront of innovation is good for our game and most especially for our fans,” Bettman said. “With the speed and complexity of hockey, it makes for an unparalleled on-ice product, but at the same time it also presents an incredible challenge. So as a league we have made significant investment to create new technology that quite literally did not exist.”

Long after the glowing puck of FoxTrax a generation ago, the NHL began its work on puck and player tracking in earnest in 2013. Tests of various systems were done at All-Star games, the 2016 World Cup of Hockey and two regular-season games earlier this month in Las Vegas.

While the glowing puck isn’t coming back, this All-Star Weekend is another test. NBC Sports in the United States and Rogers Sportsnet in Canada will be showcasing tracking data with NBC featuring it as part of a digital-only broadcast of the 3-on-3 tournament tonight.

Players have agreed to the tracking, but the NHL is not yet committing to a firm start date because officials say test-

DATELINE

Today is the 26th day of 2019 and the 37th day of winter.

TODAY'S HISTORY: In 1802, Congress passed a bill that established the position of Librarian of Congress.

In 1837, Michigan was admitted as the 26th U.S. state.

In 1950, the Indian Constitution went into effect, marking the birth of the Republic of India.

In 1998, President Bill Clinton denied allegations of an extramarital affair during a televised speech.

In 2015, Libby Lane became the first woman to be appointed as a bishop by the Church of England.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS: Douglas MacArthur (1880-1964), military leader; Maria von Trapp (1905-1987), matriarch of singing family/memoirist; Paul Newman (1925-2008), actor; Jules Feiffer (1929-), cartoonist/writer; Scott Glenn (1941-), actor; Gene Siskel (1946-1999), journalist/critic; David Strathairn (1949-), actor; Eddie Van Halen (1955-), guitarist/songwriter; Ellen DeGeneres (1958-), comedian/talk show host; Wayne Gretzky (1961-), hockey player; Vince Carter (1977-), basketball player.

TODAY'S FACT: The first Library of Congress was burned (along with the rest of the Capitol building) by British soldiers in 1814, and its 3,000 books were destroyed. The library was rebuilt in part through the purchase of President Thomas Jefferson's personal library of 6,487 books in 1815.

TODAY'S SPORTS: In 1986, Chicago crushed New England 46-10 in Super Bowl XX, as the Bears' renowned defense held the Patriots to seven yards rushing.

TODAY'S QUOTE: "Could I have but a line a century hence crediting a contribution to the advance of peace, I would gladly yield every honor which has been accorded me in war." — Douglas MacArthur

TODAY'S NUMBER: 1.37 -- weight (in pounds) of the Cullinan Diamond, the largest gem-quality diamond ever found. The 3,106.75-carat gem was discovered in the Premier Mine near Pretoria, South Africa, on this day in 1905.

TODAY'S MOON: Between full moon (Jan. 20) and last quarter moon (Jan. 27).

From the closed hand makes life harder

By Phillip Alder

Herbert Hoover said, "The great liability of the engineer compared to men of other professions is that his works are out in the open where all can see them. ... If his works do not work, he is damned."

We have been looking at covering an honor with an honor. When the honor that might be covered is led from the board, a good defender will find the right play most of the time. However, if the honor is led from the closed hand, the defender's life is much harder. Declarer's cards are not out in the open where the defender can see them.

How can South try to benefit from that in today's deal? He is in three no-trump. After West leads the spade king, how should South play?

North thinks that three no-trump will just be a matter of overtricks. But South has only seven top tricks (one spade, three hearts, two diamonds and one club) and is faced with two minor-suit finesses. If he takes one that loses, the defenders will cash too many spade tricks.

South sets a small trap. At trick three, he leads the diamond jack from his hand, hoping to tempt a cover. If West falls for it, the contract makes. But if West plays low smoothly, declarer will probably fail, because he will win with dummy's king and cash the diamond ace. When the queen does not drop, South will fall back on the club finesse.

How does West know what to do in diamonds? By checking the high-card points. West has 10, South promised 15-17, and dummy holds 15, so East must have a Yarborough. There is no point in covering the diamond jack.

Shawe fades late in 54-32 loss to Shiners

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Shawe Memorial and Rising Sun squared off in a scrappy, physical Ohio River Valley Conference boys basketball showdown on the Hilltoppers' homecoming with the Shiners emerging with a lopsided 54-32 win.

But before assuming the game was a Shiners runaway throughout, consider that the Hilltoppers trailed just 25-21 at halftime despite having top scorer junior center Ethan Stuart post a zero in the first half.

In fact, Shawe was still within single digits at the end of the third quarter after Stuart scored his only four points of the game in the frame as the Shiners expanded their lead to 36-28. But rather than keep the game tight or even mount a late comeback, Shawe faded in the fourth as Rising Sun outscored the Hilltoppers 18-4 to win the game going away.

Neither team shot the ball well. The two squads made just 39 percent at the foul stripe — combining for an anemic 13-of-33 — and fared even worse from the field. Shawe was 6-of-17 at the free-throw line while Rising Sun was only slightly better at 7-of-16.

With Stuart struggling to get touches against the Shiners' aggressive defense and then managing only one goal from the field on entry passes he actually received, it was left up to freshman Henry Grote to carry the scoring load with 13 points.

Grote was the only Hilltopper in double digits — sophomore Grayson May scored eight — and that wasn't enough to cancel out a strong night by the Shiners' senior guard tandem of Noah Pflum and Nick Koons. Pflum scored a game high 23 points — 17 of that in the second half — primarily on a variety of drives to the basket while Koons knocked down three 3-pointers en route to his 15 points.

The loss halted a one-game win streak by the Hilltoppers, who had defeated Columbus Christian 68-60 in their previous outing 13 days ago, and dropped Shawe to 3-11 overall and 0-4 in the ORVC. The Shiners bounced back from a 54-45 loss at Switzerland County last Friday night to win their fourth game in their last five and improve to 6-7 overall and 1-1 in the ORVC.

Shawe will now look to do some bouncing back of its own tonight when the Hilltoppers visit South Central in Elizabethtown. The Rebels were 49-45 losers to Henryville on Friday to fall to 7-7 on the season and halt a three-game win streak.

New Washington used a big second quarter to pull away and defeat Switzerland County 72-57 at home in boys basketball on Friday.

The Mustangs (6-12) led only 16-11 after the first quarter but outscored Switzerland 17-4 in the second to take a 33-15 lead into the break. New Washington kept up the pressure in the second half, scoring 18 points in the third and 21 in the fourth for the win. Switzerland, now 4-12 on the season, travels to Milan today.

Mason Welsh ignited the early spark. Welsh came down on three-straight possessions near the midway mark of the first quarter and drilled a trio of 3-pointers to cut the deficit to 10-9 but Silver Creek went on a 6-0 run to go back up seven points.

Madison closed out with a layup by Nick Center and a three by Cooper Yancey that brought the game back down to a two-point deficit but the Cubs trailed by five at the end of the period after Trey Kaufman's fifth point.

And that is how the game played out until the fourth quarter, with Silver Creek trying to find a rhythm and Madison answering back to stay within striking distance, never allowing the Dragons a lead larger than eight points.

Madison trailed 40-34 with 6:53 left in the third quarter after back-to-back field goals by Kessinger but the Cubs answered with a 6-0 run. Nick Center came down for back-to-back layups and Welsh struck again, tying the game at the 5:14 mark. But as quick as the game was tied, Silver Creek quickly got back on top and never looked back.

The Dragons pounded the paint and went up by seven and the lead shot up to 11 with 5:20 remaining in the game. Madison strung together a spurt on two Luke Ommen free throws and a Yancey layup to pull within six two minutes later but Silver Creek continued to go inside with the basketball.

Kooper Jacobi ended the run with a basket and Jack Hawkins finished on a personal 5-0 run after three points by Gross in the final two minutes, putting the final touch on a 13-point win.

"We found our openings where we made some runs," McFarland said. "We kept battling and getting ourselves into some good spots and give credit to Silver Creek for never giving us that extra spot that we needed. We just couldn't get that one possession where we could get over the hump."

Silver Creek's inside presence was a factor on both ends, with rebounding being key. With a starting lineup of 6-foot-6, 6-foot-6 and 6-foot-8, the Dragons outrebounded the Cubs 39-15 including 16 offensive rebounds that translated into 12 second chance points. Silver Creek also scored 36 points in the paint.

Hawkins posted a double-double of 21 points and 16 rebounds while Jacobi scored 15 points and Kaufman went for 11 points and 10 rebounds.

"We've got to box out but there's also more to rebounding than just boxing out," McFarland noted. "The ones that hurt are the rebounds that they get without us touching them."

The Cubs put four players in double figures with Welsh leading the way at 21 points on 8-of-13 shooting including a 5-of-10 clip from outside the arc. Yancey added 16 points while Ommen and Center added 10 points apiece.

"We've said it all year about Mason (Welsh) ... you have to put a big guy on him defensively," McFarland noted. "He's not a big guy but that's what defenses have to do. He can take big guys to the rim and get himself in position to hit some shots on the outside. Our guys used him well and he helped us big time, especially from the outside."

Madison (8-4) visits North Harrison tomorrow night.

Hawks ride nine 3-pointers to win over cold-shooting CAM

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Cold first-half shooting by Madison combined with hot outside shooting by Columbus HomeSchool cost Christian Academy of Madison boys basketball a 64-57 loss in a non-conference game in Columbus on Friday.

The Defenders managed just 19 points in the first half as the Hawks — fueled by seven first half 3-pointers — built a 35-19 lead.

Madison coach Adrian Carter made adjustments at halftime — sending freshman guard Clay Carter inside where he scored seven third quarter points including five on 5-of-6 at the foul line — to start battling back and also edge the Hawks ever closer to foul trouble.

The Defenders still trailed 48-32 at the close of the third quarter before outscoring the Hawks 25-6 in the fourth to finally make a game of the contest as two Columbus players fouled out in the final period.

In the end, CAM faced just too big of a deficit to complete the comeback and Columbus held on for the seven-point win.

Carter led all players with 21 points while junior Trent Haggard had a double-double of 15 points and 11 rebounds. Columbus put three players in double figures as Jack Farnsley led the team with 20 points and nine rebounds on the strength of four 3-pointers and Caleb Dukes hit three 3-pointers and scored 19 while Noah Armstrong added 14.

The Defenders (10-10) travel to winless Evansville Christian (0-12) today for their next Southern Roads Conference contest.

not to let Southwestern get the shots it wanted.

"We're a hard team to stop on offense. We had five starters in double figures tonight and a sixth man with eight and we went 22-of-25 from the line. Who are you going to stop?" Bomholt said. "And when we play defense — which this team doesn't like to do because they prefer to score — we can be pretty good too."

Tyler Kramer struggled with his shot most of the game but found other ways to score. The senior hit a pair of 3-pointers but went 8-for-10 at the free-throw line and finished with 24 points. Sophomore Matthew Williams added 20 points including a pair of 3-pointers.

Zach Cole scored 14 points on the inside while Foster Mefford shrugged off early foul trouble to score 12 points and Austin Kramer added 11. Hunter Mefford, in just his second game back after surgery for a groin injury, scored eight points off the bench.

Starks hit six 3-pointers and scored 20 points to lead Clarksville while Brent Strobl hit four treys and scored 14. Dae'von Fuqua added 10 points.

Southwestern hosts Mitchell tonight for the Rebels' homecoming, a game that will also be broadcast live by the IHSAA Champions Network at ihsaatv.org. Bomholt said that it was important for his team to come to the game focused and ready to play against the 8-5 Blue Jackets.

"It's homecoming and I like it when my players are involved but I've also stressed to them that the game is the most important thing," Bomholt said. "Without the game there is no homecoming so it's important that we come out ready to play."
